AdvanCare | Our Lived Patient Experience

The barriers an aging farmer may face when seeking care in a Rural Health Unit (RHU)

Typical rural healthcare barriers in Cagayan

Illustrative persona based on AdvanCare's project context.

We did not imagine these barriers, We witnessed them firsthand.

Patient → Tricycle/Kuliglig → Rural Health Unit (RHU) → Pharmacy / Medicines

1 Long travel

Mode, distance, and cost create risks.

2 High out-of-pocket cost

Medical and non-emergency transport strain a budget.

3 Fragmented care

Disparate providers and coordination.

A care journey is only workable when access, affordability, and follow-up work together.

From access to grassroots affordability to Specialized Healthcare,

NO Cagayano Barangay resident left behind

AdvanCare

Problem Statement

Care is hard to access, afford, and coordinate in Cagayan.

Care exists. Reliable, affordable support doesn't reach everyone.

Aging farmers and fishers, people with special needs, and their families face distance, high costs, and scattered services.

56% of Cagayan deaths in 2020 had no medical attendant
Source: PSA, 2020

57 years old median age of Filipino farmers
Source: DA via PCO, "Training makes farming a dependable fallback for retirees"

31% of farmers lived in poverty in 2018
Source: PSA, 2018 — Poverty Incidences Among the Basic Sectors in 2018

1 Hard to find trusted care

Families struggle to find and match screened caregivers.

2 Costly and far away

Care, transport, and out-of-hospital costs strain remote households.

3 Fragmented support

Booking, records, updates, and payments are scattered; care breaks after discharge.

From farmers to grassroots, to specialized healthcare, NO Cagayano Barangay resident left behind.
